Practical steps to take after flooding

1. Ensure safety before returning to your property

Before entering your property, confirm with emergency services that it is safe to return. Flood water can hide dangers like contaminated water, structural issues, or electrical hazards. Contact a qualified electrician or gas engineer to check the safety of electricity and gas before use. Contact your water provider if you experience sewage flooding in your property.

2. Contact your insurance company

Get in touch with your insurer as soon as possible to report the flood and follow their advice. Most insurers have a 24-hour helpline. Do not throw away damaged goods until your insurer has authorised you to do so. If you're renting, inform your landlord immediately and contact your contents insurance provider to discuss the next steps.

3. Handle property clean-up safely

When cleaning your property, always wear protective gloves and clothing – especially when handling any remaining floodwater or items that have come into contact with floodwater. Use masks as necessary and follow guidelines from local authorities and waste management services when disposing of damaged items. Call the Council's helpline if you need practical help cleaning up (T. 0300 300 8500).

4. Record and manage damage

Take detailed photographs and/or videos of all damage and create a list of affected belongings. Keep documentation of all communications with insurance company, repair professionals, and disposal actions.

5. Dispose of contaminated food

Dispose of any food that has been in contact with floodwater, even if tinned, packaged or defrosted.

6. Ventilate your property

After ensuring it is safe to enter, ventilate your property to help dry it out, keeping security in mind.

7. Watch out for fraudulent contractors

During challenging times, unscrupulous builders and traders may offer their services. Ensure that any contractor provides a written quotation on letter-headed paper with a landline contact number and address. Further advice is on our website.
